“ I am a QA at Alatrade. I met Mr. Hyde when I was training to cover for QA lead during vacations or absences. You need a code to get to the lab and I did not have one. Mr. Hyde would laugh at me as I tried to find someone to let me in (several times a night!) When I finally got my own code, I went straight to him! We laughed and he said I had finally "graduated". I passed right by his office on my many trips to the lab he would always wave me in to ask how I was doing. We talked a lot about his upcoming retirement. He and his wife had a "bucket list" as did my husband and myself. We would compare plans. One that we were both looking forward to was the scenic train ride across Canada, to see the fall colors. It is peak color season Mr Hyde, enjoy the view from above! Goodbye and Godspeed, you will be sorely missed! QA Kim

“ I couldn't wait to see Mr Hyde everyday when I got to work. I was always trying to think of something to crack him up. He gave me my first nickname (cornbread). Any trip I went on he would always tell me places I had to eat and gave me tons of great career advice. I'm going to miss sitting in his office talking politics and getting guidance.

“ I have so many memories of Mr. Hyde I don't know where to start. I met him when he started at Alatrade. He would always say " Where's my QA Supervisor" when he entered the QA office and I would be sitting right there in front of him. I loved when he would go on a trip so I could look at the pictures. He would always have me look up the places Barbara and himself was going to go, which would always get me excited for them. So when he would come back I could not wait to see pictures. If I was having a bad night he could tell and would always get into his stash and give me something sweet to try to cheer me up. I knew him as a kind hearted man. When it would snow we would both leave work at the same time and I would follow him or he would follow me until I would turn off to go home. We both would say we have to watch out for each other. I feel like I know his family because he always talked about them and you could see just how proud he was of all of them. I am going to miss him so much and I feel blessed to have had him in my life for the time I did. Barbara if you ever need someone to talk to I'm here.
