“ My big brother Ken and I shared bunk beds in an on insulated back porch turned into a bedroom. The winter nights were cold with just a space heater.

We enjoyed making model Rockets together – he had money, and I enjoyed making them with him :-). We started off with bottle rockets (cutting the sticks to make tin foil fins) and then went onto Estes and Century rocket kits. Sometimes the double stage rockets would go so high they would fall into lake Gutnersville. Weeks later, I would find them washed up on shore down the beach.

Ken was an avid drummer and as such he carried his sticks around and everything became a drum. The muscles between his thumb and pointer finger were larger than most.

Ken loved to do puzzles, riddles, and solve problems. Large jigsaw puzzles on the card table were a common site in the summers.

Ken filled a full life, enjoyed his family, and will always be an example to his little brother.
